“THE CONNECTION GETS IT!”
-Steven Van Zandt, The Underground Garage

They've been applauded by rock pioneer, visionary, and former Rolling Stones manager Andrew Loog Oldham. They're championed by E Street legend Little Steven Van Zandt and heard just about every day on the Underground Garage - with 9 singles in heavy rotation, including 5 "Coolest Songs In The World". New England's newest hit-makers The Connection are on a roll...

Geoff Palmer, Brad Marino, and the boys in the band recently hit the studio with legendary punk, rock 'n' roll icon, producer, songwriter, and historian Andy Shernoff of the Dictators.

"Labor Of Love" is the soundtrack to the love child of Nick Lowe, Flamin' Groovies, the Kinks, and Graham Parker stumbling through the Bowry with the swagger of Exile-era Rolling Stones; finishing off the night by passing out on the Ramones' studio floor.

"Labor of Love" features scorching rockers like "Red White And Blue"; punk-rock ravers like "Don't Come Back" (featuring resident Riverdale, Cheat, and Mope Dan Vapid on his trademark backup vox); slung-back, beer-swillin' tales of the road like "Let The Jukebox Take Me"; and the Connection's trademark jangly garage-power-pop of "Circles" and "Good Things". Packing a one/two punch in under 30 minutes, "Labor of Love" is jammed with 10 soon-to-be-new classics that all the mods AND the rockers will be screaming for.
